

SOUTH HACKNEY

Across the middle of the ringing room, raised two ft. off the floor, is a square wooden box in a 'T' shape. This box encloses the shaft which turns the hands of the clock.

The bells are hung on roller bearings in a standard timber 'A' type frame installed in 1848.

The bells are rung in full circle.